Storytellers

At PONANT, we enjoy listening to stories as much as telling them. Real, fictionalised, individual, or collective, stories give shape and meaning to our lives. And each journey we take is an opportunity to immerse yourself in new tales about the places we travel through, the communities that populate them, and the animal and plant species that evolved there.

Season after season, we unveil the fascinating stories of the regions our ships sail through, promising unforgettable voyages from September 2025 to April 2026. The memorable eruptions of volcanoes in Indonesia, the legends of the Kuna and the Emberá communities in Central America, and the age-old tales and traditions of Polynesia are sure to arouse your curiosity. Not to mention the more secluded ports of call in the Caribbean and Cape Verde, whose surprises you can enjoy aboard Le Ponant, the company's iconic three-masted yacht.

Our experts, fascinated by the White Continent, are keen to introduce you to its wonders, as the legendary epics of polar explorers continue to resonate. Take, for example, the story of Ernest Shackleton, which you will have the privilege of hearing from one of his descendants, Jonathan Shackleton. And of course, as you listen to this indefatigable tale, you will be writing your own story alongside us, on board Le Commandant Charcot, on a pioneering route from Hobart to Cape Town.

On land, our rich programme of excursions and pre- and post-voyage breaks allows you to take the time to explore regions that are both unmissable and little-known. Bali, Cappadocia, the Mayan cities of Mexico: a myriad of activities and visits await you on every continent. We're sure that as well as the thrill of discovery, you'll enjoy sharing your impressions back home.

See you on board soon,

Hervé Gastinel

Our delicate flavours will surprise you every day.

“ *By embracing all the constraints inherent to cruising, we are able to offer passengers aboard Le Commandant Charcot contemporary French fine dining. Better still, we also strive to ensure that our cuisine retains a link with the natural world and local cultures. That's why we make every effort to buy our supplies from local producers, particularly fishermen, on each stopover.* ”

Alain Ducasse

5 | A MODERN fleet

We are one of only a few cruise companies to sail under the French flag, which represents the highest level of safety. We respect strict specifications regarding crew training, health and safety protocols, and regular checks on our vessels, which are equipped with the most advanced technology.

With their slender silhouette and refined decor, the Sisterships symbolise the company's desire to take the French lifestyle around the world.

6 | Working towards more RESPONSIBLE tourism

By way of our Foundation and our PONANT Blue Horizon and PONANT Science programmes, we are striving to reduce our environmental footprint on terrestrial and marine environments (for example, hybrid propulsion, recycling and waste and water treatment, elimination of single-use plastics). With laboratories available to scientific teams on board Le Commandant Charcot, we contribute to international scientific research. Sustainable development also shapes the knowledge we share with our guests, who become the ambassadors of each region we visit.

7 | CONSCIOUS travels

In the Arctic and the Antarctic, we are members of IAATO and AECO: associations that bring together different stakeholders in the polar regions to promote more responsible tourism. We have also made commitments at an international level, and are proud to be part of the UN programme to ban single-use plastics. We have earned numerous accreditations as a result of our actions, and our entire fleet has been awarded Cleanship certification by Bureau Veritas.

ANTARCTICA

Shackleton: a polar odyssey

In February 2022, the wreck of Endurance was found in the Weddell Sea, more than a century after it sank. Setting out from Plymouth, England, in August 1914, Shackleton's expedition took an unexpected turn. Caught in the ice in 1915, the ship drifted for eight months before the hull succumbed to the pressure of the ice. What followed was a journey of survival at the end of the world.

With their three-masted vessel immobilised, the 28 shipwrecked men decided to set off on foot, under the guidance of their expedition leader Sir Ernest Shackleton. Their only hope of survival was to reach Elephant Island. Pulling sledges and three canoes, the sailors decided to set up what they nicknamed "Camp Patience", in the hope that the ice would melt and allow them to set sail again. The crew spent three months in the silence of the polar night, with temperatures approaching -40°C , and were forced to survive by hunting seals and penguins.

Rapidly running out of supplies, the members of the expedition attempted a desperate mission in April 1916, braving tumultuously high seas. In the end, it took the crew five days to reach Elephant Island. While this was their first step on dry land, of course, their arrival on this arid islet was still thousands of kilometres from civilisation, leaving them with little hope of survival.

Remarkable endurance

Shackleton finally convinced a handful of men to set sail again in the lifeboat James Caird, to attempt the impossible. They were to head for the island of South Georgia, 1,500 kilometres away, which they had left 16 months earlier.

While the journey to King Haakon's Bay was a feat in itself, the crossing of the island's icy mountains to reach the whaling station at Stromness, was prodigious. It took three months to return to rescue their companions. This odyssey bears witness to the impressive strength of spirit of the explorer, thanks to whom the entire crew survived.

In addition to gathering new data on the geology, climate and fauna of Antarctica, this voyage also led to major scientific advances. With the aid of expedition photographer Frank Hurley's images, the epic of Endurance continues to inspire generations of explorers and travellers.

South – the first polar expedition ever filmed

With his camera, Frank Hurley immortalised this incredible adventure, from the interminable wait on board the ship to the miraculous rescue of those shipwrecked. On his return, he put his name to South (1919), considered to be the first exploration documentary. Proof of the posterity of this epic, the film The Endurance (2000) takes a new look at the expedition using archive footage and testimonies from the families of the survivors.

“The sky becomes a mother-of-pearl shell, where all the iridescent colours of nature blend together, without clashing...”

Jean-Baptiste Charcot, Le Français au pôle Sud
[translated from the original French work]

Poa flabellata: the shelter of seabirds

This perennial grass native to South America, known as tussock, grows mainly in the Falkland Islands. Its dense, high tufts rising up to 2.5 metres in height can live for 200 years, and create a cool and humid microclimate that is essential for biodiversity on land deprived of trees and shrubs.

They thus provide essential habitat for birds, including penguins, petrels and albatrosses, as well as shelter for insects.

Fire in Antarctica

At 3,794 metres high, Mount Erebus on Ross Island is one of Antarctica's most iconic volcanoes. Discovered by James Clark Ross in 1841 and named after HMS Erebus, one of two ships sailed by the captain, it is the southernmost active volcano in the world. Its crater contains a lava lake, which is rare on our planet.

Polar breakthroughs

To protect themselves from icy storms, Weddell seals maintain breathing holes by biting the ice with their teeth. This allows them to stay underwater for long periods of time without needing to come to the surface.

NORTH AMERICA

Through the eyes of Olivia Capeillère

Aquatic rhapsody: the St Lawrence cetaceans

Since a life-changing encounter with beluga whales while kayaking, Olivia Capeillère has devoted herself to the cetaceans of the St Lawrence. As a guide trained as a naturalist specialising in marine mammals in Tadoussac, she now shares her passion with PONANT guests.

"Autumn is the best time to visit the region because, while belugas reside in the St Lawrence, rorquals start arriving in the spring. So it is in September-October that we see them the most. This matches up with the migration of birds, the river acting as a wind corridor which brings them towards the South. At this time, visibility is often exceptional as the white sheet of humidity eases and the leaves take on an orange tone, which adds a romantic touch.

The whales mainly stay close to the north shore, which is much deeper than the south shore. They do not venture beyond Tadoussac, one of my favourite places, both for the authenticity of the village and for its position as the 'epicentre' for cetaceans. The shoals rise offshore, creating an upwelling, bringing water from depths of 300 to 20 metres. With each tide, nutrients emerge at the surface and, thanks to photosynthesis, are transformed into phytoplankton, the basis of the marine food chain. You can see blue whales, fin whales, minke whales, humpback whales and porpoises, as well as up to 200 varieties of seals and seabirds! Biodiversity is very rich here, concentrated in an area just a few kilometres wide.

I spend a lot of time scanning the horizon for signs, including underwater bubbles, a blow on the surface... Watching and observing the behaviour of whales is magical and my aim is to share what drives me with the guests."

WATCH

Immediate embarkation on the St Lawrence River, surrounded by marine mammals, wild territories, and iconic cities.

"When you arrive in New York, you feel like you're entering History, it's a great privilege. You should stay on the outer decks to soak up this mythical arrival."

PONANT's Captain David Marionneau

The last land before the pole

A territory shared by the Inuit with polar bears, musk oxen, seals and whales, Nunavut is one of the most remote regions in the world. On clear days, the mountains reflect in the clear waters of the gigantic fjord that lead you to the Grinnell Glacier, rising 800 metres. The limestone cliffs forming ramparts around Akpatok Island have made it inaccessible to humans but perfect for Brünnich's guillemots, a species of bird that nests in its crevices.

Itinerary: Wilderness from Greenland to the East Coast of Canada, p. 42.

Enchanting East Coast

The island of Martha's Vineyard boasts an incomparable way of life, attracting American presidents for several decades. In particular, the small town of Oak Bluffs is a surprise with its 'gingerbread houses'. Built by the Methodist community that settled there more than a century ago, they appear to have come straight from the imagination of Hansel and Gretel.

Itinerary: From Quebec to the Big Apple: nature & remarkable cities, p. 43.

Urban hiking

The tenth largest agglomeration in the United States, founded in 1630 and nicknamed 'America's Walking City', Boston is a paradise for walkers. To find your way around, you can follow the Freedom Trail, which allows you to visit most of the tourist sites using a red line painted on the ground. There are many stages to understanding the key role played by the city since the American Revolution.

THE MEDITERRANEAN, SCANDINAVIA & ATLANTIC ISLANDS

Heading north!

In Northern Norway, the lengthening days after the polar night signal the rebirth of nature. Le Lapérouse takes you off the beaten track to discover Arctic shores (see itinerary opposite).

In search of wide open spaces

During the Easter holidays, Påskeferie, the people of Finnmark county head to their mountain chalets, hytter, or huts. At this time of year, the snow is still plentiful but the sun is high again. Families love to spend time together in the great outdoors, enjoying cross-country skiing or snowshoe trekking through the pristine countryside. Now it's your turn to discover this fascinating region on a dog-sled ride or to meet the Sámi, the indigenous community that lives here.

Land dictated to by the sea

In Lofoten, the sea intrudes everywhere, creating an enchanting topography. The snow still abounds, making the mountain peaks, turquoise sandy beaches and rocky coasts all the more beautiful. The rorbuer, fishermen's huts, and their characteristic dark red colour, dot the panorama in equal measure to the codfish in their open-air drying sheds from February to May, a speciality of the archipelago. This demonstrates how tørrfisk, or dried fish, a nutritious food and a mainstay of Scandinavian gastronomy, is made. It has also been exported to southern Europe since the 14th century and can be enjoyed on board your ship.

Nordlys, the northern light

While Tromsø is named Capital of the Northern Lights due to its proximity to the Aurora Circle, the town of Alta further north, meanwhile, reveals its Cathedral of the Northern Lights. Covered in 40,000 titanium plates designed to reflect light, the metal envelope is inspired by auroral scrolls. The months of March and April are ideal for celestial observation. It is an unforgettable experience, and you could be a privileged viewer.

Through the eyes of Aralia Loiterstein Lorente

The Canaries, combining ocean blue and volcanic black

Aralia Loiterstein Lorente is a native of Lanzarote, official tourist guide, social educator, writer and PONANT guide-lecturer. She depicts the Canary Islands as a polychrome archipelago, marked by its natural contrasts and cosmopolitan heritages, with unsuspected influence.

"What makes the eight Canary Islands so different from each other is their microclimates. We're in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, where the dust of the Sahara meets the trade winds. This explains the diversity of the landscapes, with cactus, euphorbia, and forests of humid laurel trees – the last in the world, sheltered in the Garajonay. On the Teide volcano, in Tenerife, we also have unique flora, which has adapted very well to the dryness. The tajinastes, for example, can grow several metres high. It is like being on another planet! If you like lunar, vegetation-free panoramas, Lanzarote is paradise. Some volcanoes are more than 20 million years old, others 200 years old. In La Palma, the earth is still hot after the eruption of 2021. This is a stopover that guests particularly enjoy.

The landscape has also shaped our traditions. With mountains and ravines making travel difficult, shepherds used silbo, a language of whistling, to communicate. It is still taught in schools on the island of La Gomera and has been declared UNESCO intangible heritage of humanity.

I would like to stress the importance of the link that the Canaries have with the rest of the world. To understand this, I always quote the adage that goes, 'If you're talking politics, you're European; if you're talking geography, you're clearly African; but if you're talking culture, you're Latin American.' Before setting out to conquer the New World, the Spanish made a stopover in the archipelago, reflected today in urban planning. Here we discover the beginnings of the great Latin American cities, for example Santa Ana Square on Gran Canaria, considered the first Plaza de Armas."

This is the number of Unesco sites, spread across Turkey, Greece and Italy, that you will have the opportunity to visit on a single trip. The focus on the wonders of the Mediterranean world, from antiquity to the present day, is one that heritage enthusiasts will relish with interest and curiosity.

Itinerary: The Mediterranean: in the footsteps of great civilisations, p. 50.

Costa del Sol

With over 150 km of coastline and 325 days of sunshine per year, the aptly named Costa del Sol is pure Mediterranean splendour. Idyllic coastline, historic cities, artistic heritage, narrow streets with dazzling façades... Málaga, Marbella and Almería are the three stop-offs we bring you in Andalusia that will have you moving to the rhythm of the flamenco guitar.

Itineraries: Iberian shores and Ancient shores of the Mediterranean, p. 51.

Heading to the ‘islands of smiles’

This is a journey few have the chance to experience.

About 20 kilometres off the coast of Guinea-Bissau, the Bissagos archipelago reveals its 88 islands, only 23 of which are inhabited.

They are approached by Zodiac, before venturing into forest and mangrove, gradually revealing clearings and a few huts with palm roofs. Let us guide you to meet a community whose traditions are linked to nature.

Itinerary: Adventure in the Bissagos Islands, p. 55.

Sandy Garden of Eden

Nicknamed ‘the fantastic island’ or ‘the island of dunes’,

Boa Vista in Cape Verde means first and foremost ‘beautiful view’. It has to be said that it boasts one of the most beautiful beaches in the world in Praia de Santa Mónica. Bordering the Atlantic Ocean, it is a wild expanse favoured by birds and turtles.

The coasts are beaten by the winds, making them a paradise for kitesurfers, as well as offering periods of calm for swimmers.

Itinerary: The many faces of Cape Verde, p. 54.

Waterways

The levadas are irrigation channels, now dry, that criss-cross the island of Madeira. Dug by the Portuguese from the 16th century onwards for the transport of water from the northwest — especially for the cultivation of sugar cane — they now constitute a hiking network over 1,000 kilometres long!

THE CARIBBEAN &
CENTRAL AMERICA

Guests' logbook: Humbled by nature

Le Ponant? This is Jeannine Keller's favourite yacht – "the DNA of the company". One of our most loyal guests, Jeannine Keller has explored South India, the Maldives, Croatia and Corsica with us. As Le Ponant prepares to set sail for the West Indies in 2025-2026, Jeannine gives us an insight into her voyages on board.

"What's magical about travelling aboard Le Ponant is its approach. The yacht always gets up close and personal. Landscapes, lagoons, people. You feel it is just the world and you. We took our then six-year-old granddaughter to Corsica. It was wonderful. Swimming with her from the marina, having the sea as your private pool... I think the marina is my favourite place on the ship. I sit there and contemplate my surroundings. I take a book with me, which I inevitably abandon, caught up in the scenery or the crew's manoeuvres, which I can watch from the front row on the Sun Deck.

One of the words I would choose to define the ship and the unrivalled experience it offers is 'humility', particularly in the face of the elements. Even though we're not always under sail – the engines play their part too – I know that we are going to be moving along. I like this movement. It's alive. When the lapping waves dictate their rhythm on Le Ponant, you feel humbled by nature.

With its renovation [in 2021, editor's note] Le Ponant has maintained the same silhouette. Its intimate feel has been preserved and even enhanced. The lounge and bar areas are cosy and tastefully decorated. The proximity creates a very special atmosphere. The captain shares his love of the sea with you, and the on-board staff take great care of you. The fact that there are only around 30 guests on board also allows a certain camaraderie to develop. That's what we are looking for when we sail aboard this yacht. To explore intimate corners of the world, and to get up close and personal with the captain and crew. It is like being part of a family."

WATCH

Far more than a mere bridge between the North and South of diverse continents, Central America is a treasure trove of innumerable riches. Remnants of the Maya civilisation, dense and lush flora and bustling cities bring the promise of an unforgettable journey through space and time.

Glimpses of wildlife

UNESCO-listed since 1981, Darién National Park is home to numerous endemic species. 169 species of mammals and 530 species of birds coexist on the park's 575,000 hectares of coasts (beaches, coves, mangroves), plains (rivers, rainforests), and mountains (palm forests). Indigenous communities, such as the Emberá, and their lifestyles are also preserved here.

A timeless hat

It was popularised by workers during the construction of the canal, who baptised it the Panama hat. US President Franklin Roosevelt contributed to its international fame during a visit to the site in 1906 when he was seen wearing one.

ASIA

Guests' logbook: Asia in a nutshell

Lovers of exotic lands, Christine and Laurent Lévêque embarked on a voyage of exploration commencing in dizzying Singapore, climbing the bustling Mount Bromo, and absorbing the gentle Balinese way of life, they share their impressions with us, still tinged with the wonder of their first discoveries.

Cultural fusion in Singapore

"You can go from Chinatown to Little India or Arab Street in just a few minutes. The city alternates between districts with architecture shaped by colonial influences and futuristic districts with avant-garde skyscrapers. We loved our walk on a suspension bridge 25 metres above the canopy, as well as in the botanical gardens, which are a UNESCO World Heritage Site and home to more than 10,000 plant species, some of them rare and endemic. We found this mix of ultra-modern city and exuberant nature really interesting."

Inner peace at Borobudur

"The size of Borobudur, on the island of Java in Indonesia, is simply breathtaking. It is one of the largest Buddhist monuments in the world, boasting no fewer than 500 Buddha statues. As the monks reached the top of the temple, the rain began to fall, rapidly emptying the site of visitors. We stayed just long enough for the weather to calm down... It was a moment lost in time, just like the story by the writer Roger Vailland in 1950, which I had brought with me in my luggage," exclaims Laurent.

Close to the elements

"It's a very personal interpretation, but I found that the dark, pyramidal silhouette of Borobudur echoed that of Mount Bromo, a sacred Indonesian volcano that is still active and rises to over 2,300 metres. After crossing the black sand plains, we took our time climbing the 250 steps to the crater rim. The closer we got, the stronger the smell of sulphur became. But when we arrived the sight was astonishing: a crater with a jade-green lake at its centre, from which there came a dull noise and billowing smoke. I've never felt so close to the bowels of the earth," Christine recalls with emotion.

Balinese serenity

"The island of Bali has preserved its Hindu traditions, cultivating a gentle way of life highlighted by picture-postcard landscapes. It was the perfect opportunity for us to immerse ourselves in the lifestyle of a Balinese family. We purified ourselves with water from the sacred springs of a temple, before sharing in the preparation of the meal and the daily offerings for the dead and the deities. Marked by learning about the harvesting of rice, making coconut oil, braiding bamboo fibre and dances to the sound of the gamelan [traditional instrumental ensemble, editor's note], we were completely immersed as the hours passed by. A leap through time and space that we're not about to forget."

OCEANIA
& POLYNESIA

Papua New Guinea, whispering archipelagos

This season, PONANT will take you to the heart of the ancestral cultures of Papua New Guinea (itineraries pages 80 and 81). With over 700 ethnic groups, it is one of the most linguistically diverse countries in the world. Local communities are characterised by the durability of their customs and the preservation of multiple cultural identities.

The Kula, an exchange of good practices

In the Trobriand Islands and other archipelagos in the region, an ancestral ritual – the Kula – lives on. It takes the form of an exchange of objects and is performed during ceremonial dances. The artefacts, vaygu'as, are most often jewellery. They are intended to be passed on, loaned and displayed, before being introduced back into the circuit. A source of prestige is associated with their handing on, they are surrounded by many legends.

Maritime rituals: the carved canoes of Alotau

The canoes of Milne Bay are masterpieces of craftsmanship, made from fig and iron wood using traditional techniques. They are renowned for their resistance to salt water. The hull, carved from a single tree, is decorated with richly sculpted and painted figureheads. This maritime art is passed down from generation to generation and celebrated at the annual Alotau festival.

Holosa masks, 'ghosts' of the warrior spirit

Near Madang, the clay masks of the Asaro people are characterised by distorted human features, sometimes decorated with shells, horns or even pigs' teeth. Legend has it that these masks were used to terrify their enemies, but today they are worn by dancers who coat their bodies with clay. Protected by their masks, the 'mud men' act out combat scenes.

The Sepik River crocodile

For the inhabitants of Kopar, on the banks of the Sepik River, the crocodile is considered a totem animal.

Young men enter into adulthood by means of a ritual in which their backs are scratched to imitate the animal's skin. According to Sepik tradition, teenagers symbolically absorb the strength and power of the crocodile.

The voices of Madang

With over 170 languages spoken, Madang is a linguistic mosaic. Coastal Austronesian languages coexist with inland Papuan languages, forming a cultural melting pot. From all these dialects, Tok Pisin, derived from pidgin colonial English, is used as lingua franca, enabling intercultural communication.

Tufi, a coral Eden

The Tufi Fjords are a geological wonder offering a striking backdrop of vegetation-covered limestone cliffs plunging into the Coral Sea. Between deep coves and narrow bays, this marine sanctuary boasts underwater landscapes forged by the volcanic legacy of the Ring of Fire, offering divers gardens of coral and mysterious wrecks.

Tami, on the invisible frontier of the Wallace Line

Situated close to the Wallace Line, which marks the biogeographical boundary between South-East Asia and Australia, the islands of Tami are teeming with a diversity of animal and plant species unique to these two areas. These include the tree kangaroo, a species endemic to these forests. Exploring the archipelago means entering a preserved ecosystem at the heart of Papua's biodiversity.

Shellfish, their true worth

In Malaita, shellfish play a central economic role. Their value lies in their rarity and beauty. To create this currency, artisans in Langalanga and Lau Lagoon break, polish and thread shells to make the tafuliaes, necklaces, whose value varies according to length. Although the arrival of the Europeans introduced new forms of currency, shells still play a significant role, particularly in dowries.

On board, I met up with a barmaid I'd met on a previous voyage, who created and poured me some wonderful cocktails. I spent a long time in the library and around the pool. For all departures on board Le Paul Gauguin: should your flight transit via the USA, a visa or ESTA may be required. Please contact USA consulate website for details.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

To guarantee your entry into one or several countries, you must ensure that you comply with the formalities and health requirements specific to each destination. In just a few clicks on our online search engine, find all the formalities you must complete prior to your departure (visas, entry authorisations for each country, vaccinations, etc.); <https://en.ponant.com/formalities>

The international situation can change rapidly, so be sure to check this information regularly prior to your departure. However, please note that we always recommend our guests contact the relevant national immigration and customs and border control authorities directly to find out what rules apply to their specific situation. PONANT is not responsible for any decisions made by guests based on the information provided by the online search engine.

Visas: before departure, you are advised to check that your visa's validity period matches the duration and dates of the stay requested, or you may encounter some unpleasant consequences if there is any non-compliance with the authorised duration of stay.

Conditions for entering Polynesia: to see the latest entry and stay conditions for Tahiti and its surrounding islands regarding Covid, please check the Tahiti Tourism website: <https://www.tahititourisme.uk/covid-19/>

We invite you to read our boarding conditions and passenger travel abilities: <https://l.ponant.com/ErQG>. Any new reservation implies the acceptance of these conditions.

List of items prohibited on board: find the full list here: https://l.ponant.com/CGV_EN. Should you have one of these products or objects in your possession, they will be confiscated immediately and will not be transported on the ship. When an item transported aboard is considered illegal, the relevant authorities will be notified systematically.

Health: if you are undergoing medical treatment, do not forget to bring all your necessary medications with you, as well as any prescriptions. You are advised to contact a healthcare professional well in advance of your departure for any medical advice about your trip.

POLAR EXPEDITIONS

Complimentary polar parka: for all voyages marked with the logo 'Parka Gift', a PONANT polar water-resistant parka is offered (adult sizes only; in case of consecutive voyages, only one parka per person).

Complimentary boot hire: boot rental will be offered onboard (for adults only) on expedition voyages where the logo 'Boots on loan' appears.

Ports of call, visited sites, outings and landings will depend on weather conditions, position of ice, winds and the state of the sea. These can force a change of plans at any time. The Captain and the Expedition Leader may at any time cancel or stop any activity, or even modify the itinerary. The final itinerary will be confirmed by the Captain, who will take into account the touristic quality of the sites and above all, the safety of the passengers. Their decision will be based on advice from experts and authorities.

Travelling to polar/isolated regions is an exhilarating experience in remote areas: please remember that you are far from modern hospitals with full medical facilities, thus evacuation is extremely expensive. Without adequate medical coverage, all expenses will have to be immediately paid with your personal funds. We urge you to subscribe to full coverage insurance, choose your insurance company very carefully, be extremely vigilant and ensure your insurance is fully comprehensive, especially if you are insured by your credit card. PONANT offers an insurance contract with extensive guarantees, please contact us for more information.

FOR VOYAGES OFFERING SCUBA DIVING

Within the context of the health measures relating to Covid-19, you will also be required to complete a health declaration. You will be given this form when you pre-book your dive.

For yachting voyages, the minimum level required for scuba diving is 1 star CMAS or the PADI Open Water Diver (or equivalent).
